A CONCEPTUAL STUDY ON GIG ECONOMY

N. SANTHOSH KUMAR

SESHADRIPURAM

ABSTRACT

This Paper focuses on the concept of GIG economy. A different technological revolution – the digital revolution – is partially responsible for the recent return to peer-to-peer exchange. Contingent workers are those who don't have an implicit or explicit contract for long-term employment. Alternative employment arrangements include independent contractors (also called freelancers or independent consultants), on-call workers, and workers provided by temporary help agencies or contract firms. The main objective of our paper is to understand the importance of GIG economy and its impact on the trends in all the sectors. Managing finances is an important part of making gig arrangements viable. Success was once defined as being able to stay at a company for a long time and move up the corporate ladder. Gig Economy will itself become an engine of economic and social transformation. Working nine to five for a single employer bears little resemblance to the way a substantial share of the workforce makes a living today. Millions of people assemble various income streams and work independently, rather than in structured payroll jobs.

KEYWORDS

GIG, technological revolution, employment.

INTRODUCTION

A GIG economy is a situation in which impermanent positions are normal and associations contract with autonomous labourers for transient engagements. Gig specialists are spread among different occupation gathers and are not effortlessly recognized in reviews of business and income. Be that as it may, they are comparable in the way they gain cash. These labourers frequently get singular gigs utilizing a site or portable application that matches them with clients. A few gigs might be exceptionally concise, for example, noting a 5-minute overview. Others are any longer yet of constrained term, for example, a 18-month database administration extend. When one gig is over, specialists who gain a relentless pay along these lines must discover another. What's more, once in a while, that implies juggling different employments without a moment's delay.

BACKGROUND OF THE STUDY

Digitization has additionally contributed straightforwardly to a diminishing in occupations as programming replaces a few sorts of work and implies that others take a great deal less time. Different impacts incorporate monetary weights on organizations prompting to further staff diminishment and the passageway of the Millennial era into the workforce.

The present truth is that individuals tend to change occupations a few circumstances all through their working lives; the gig economy can be viewed as a development of that pattern. That implies that specialists can choose among impermanent occupations and ventures the world over, while bosses can choose the best people for particular activities from a bigger pool than that accessible in any given territory. Not very far in the past, the main individuals who searched for "gigs" were performers. For whatever is left of us, once we exceeded our school longings for shake fame, we discovered "genuine" occupations that paid us a settled pay each month, permitted us to take paid occasions and shaped the reason for arranging a steady future. Today, more of us pick, rather, to make our living working gigs instead of full time. To the confident people, it guarantees an eventual fate of enabled business visionaries and unlimited advancement. To the naysayers, it forecasts a tragic fate of disappointed specialists chasing for their next wedge of piecework. Working at home or in bistros, beginning organizations with groups of advisors and specialists you've met just on the web, and notwithstanding propelling business wanders that in the end may bomb, all designate "activity," "innovativeness," and "versatility," which are exceptionally attractive characteristics in today's working environment.

OCCUPATIONS FOR GIG BUSINESS

Gigs are more probable in a few occupations than in others. Work that includes a solitary undertaking, for example, composing a strategy for success, loans itself well to this kind of game plan. Any occupation in which specialists might be contracted for on-request occupations has the potential for gig business.

Expressions and outline: Numerous occupations in this gathering, including artists, visual planners, and art and fine craftsmen, offer particular one-time benefits or altered items, which makes them great possibility for gig work.

PC and data innovation: Web designers, programming engineers, and PC developers are among the occupations in this gathering in which specialists may be enlisted to finish a solitary employment, for example, to make a private company site or another sort of programming.

Development and extraction: Craftsmen, painters, and other development laborers as often as possible go up against individual ventures of brief length, a sign of gig occupations.

Media and interchanges: The administrations of specialized journalists, mediators and interpreters, picture takers, and others in this gathering are regularly extend based and simple to convey electronically, powering a business opportunity for gig labourers.

Transportation and material moving: Ridesharing applications have made open doors for labourers who give transportation to travellers as required, and on-request shopping administrations have prompted to gig employments for conveyance drivers.

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

RESEARCH TYPE

Descriptive

SOURCES OF DATA

Secondary data: The secondary data source is data already existing in the records. The secondary data is obtained the company brochures, newspapers and website.

LIMITATIONS OF THE STUDY

Some of these limitations are as follows:

- Research was constrained by the time limit of one month
- This paper was restricted to secondary sources of Data collection.

OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY

1. To determine the effectiveness of GIG economy.
2. To understand the Advantages and Disadvantages of GIG economy.
3. To understand the new career avenues of GIG economy

ADVANTAGES AND DISADVANTAGES OF GIG WORK

Gig specialists may do shifted undertakings, however they have comparative things they appreciate—and don't—about their courses of action. Opportunity to act however they see fit what many individuals like, yet with self-sufficiency comes obligation. For instance, it can be distressing for gig labourers to guarantee that they have reliable salary. "When you're a consultant, you settle on the choices, which is awesome," says Theresa Anderson of Las Vegas, Nevada, who does visual communication, extends low maintenance from her home. "In any case, it can likewise be truly alarming."

PROSPECTS

Gig specialists say that they like being in control. They can pick ventures they appreciate and plan their work around their lives.

Adaptability: Individuals who need to work without having set hours may search for gigs to fit their calendars. "I sign on and work when I need," says Ariana Baseman, a rideshare driver in Detroit, Michigan, who transports travellers in her extra time, notwithstanding working a customary, all day work. "It's that adaptable."

Like different sorts of adaptable business game plans, gigs may offer specialists a possibility for versatility. "The thing that I adore about it is the flexibility," says Scratch Walter, of Salt Lake City, Utah, who makes online classes in PC programming. "In the event that you choose you need to take some time off; you can do that."

Assortment: Gigs may furnish specialists with an opportunity to attempt a few sorts of employments. Thus, they display assortment and profession investigation to both new and experienced specialists. "Accept open doors when they emerge," says Heenan. "You have a great deal of opportunities to do distinctive things." What's more, in case you're an "extrovert," gig work may offer association with a various customer base. "I cherish that I get to always work with various individuals," says Hayes. "I'm quite social, so I appreciate meeting various kinds."

Energy: You might need to choose gigs a similar way you would conventional business: by looking for some kind of employment in which you seek after your interests. Also, contingent upon how you plan your gigs, you may have the capacity to pick among numerous interests.

CONS

There's a great deal of instability connected with gig work. For instance, you'll need a constant flow of gigs to get steady pay. And still, at the end of the day, the sum you procure may not counterbalance a portion of the costs you'll be in charge of outside of a customary work relationship, for example, benefits.

Irregularity: Landing enough work to give a steady salary from gigs alone isn't generally simple, or even conceivable. Accordingly, numerous gig laborers discover gigs sufficient for low maintenance work however not a full-time vocation.

Laborers may battle with searching for employments, not realizing what—on the off chance that anything—will come next. "In some cases you're not profiting in light of the fact that you're not getting any work," says Baseman. "That part's not so much in your control." And even after you finish a gig, you may confront times of no salary if there are deferrals in getting paid.

Booking: Not having set hours or a business who gives guidance for the day is trying for some gig specialists. "Unless you're an exceptionally devoted, self-roused singular, it can be difficult to center," says Walter. "There's nobody letting you know what to do, no due dates."

Furthermore, contingent upon the gig, you may need to work nonstandard days or times to complete an occupation. In the event that you get a gig requiring hours on the end of the week, for instance, you won't not have the capacity to invest energy with companions who have customary 9-to-5 work filled weeks.

Absence of advantages: Gig specialists don't normally get business paid advantages, for example, premiums on medical coverage and commitments to retirement arrangements. You'll have to explore these subjects and pay for the items yourself. "I underestimated things like medical coverage," says Heenan of his previous employment, working at a school. "When you independent, you need to discover those things all alone, and it's costly."

Different advantages that gig specialists regularly pass up a major opportunity for are yearly leave and wiped out leave. Like any representatives who don't get paid time off, no work implies no compensation.

CONCLUSION

The pattern toward a gig economy has started. A review by Intuit anticipated that by 2020, 40 percent of American specialists would be self-employed entities. There are various powers behind the ascent in transient employments. For a certain something, in this computerized age, the workforce is progressively versatile and work should progressively be possible from anyplace, so that employment and area are decoupled.

Slowly but surely, these platforms create a bridge between traditional enterprises and this emerging economy. Perhaps more important, as the global economy continues to be disrupted by technology and other massive change, the Gig Economy will itself become an engine of economic and social transformation.

ABOUT THE JOURNAL

In this age of Commerce, Economics, Computer, I.T. & Management and cut throat competition, a group of intellectuals felt the need to have some platform, where young and budding managers and academicians could express their views and discuss the problems among their peers. This journal was conceived with this noble intention in view. This journal has been introduced to give an opportunity for expressing refined and innovative ideas in this field. It is our humble endeavour to provide a springboard to the upcoming specialists and give a chance to know about the latest in the sphere of research and knowledge. We have taken a small step and we hope that with the active co-operation of like-minded scholars, we shall be able to serve the society with our humble efforts.
